BRIDGES

15th January: "B" Company completed timber trestle bridge, 116 ft long, across the Moder River at Kaltenhaus.

Company work was complicated by a canal to be crossed and a steep sloping curve which was to be transformed into the approach on the French side of the Saar River. Meanwhile, "C" Company was sweating out the 150 ft TD Bailey Bridge, which required an 18 ft abutment on the German bank and a 7 ft abutment on the far bank, the French side. In spite of these difficulties, the work was well co-ordinated, and the bridge was completed and opened to traffic on the required date: 13th March.

2nd February: "A" Company repaired steel treadway bridge across rising waters of the Fecht river. This was done by reinforcing a bent under one of the spans, and installing a portable ponton bridge trestle.

2nd February: "A" Company saved wooden trestle bridge over the rising waters of the L'ih River, between Jebshelm and Ostheim. This was done by utilizing a truck winch, and installing a "dead man" to anchor the weak side of the bridge.

4th February: "A" Company completed construction of a Timber Trestle Bridge, 90 ft long, across the Rhine canal, at Artzenheim.

5th February: "C" Company completed construction of a oneway timber bridge across culvert, on the road between Guemar and Ilhhausen.

6th February: "C" Company completed construction of a bypass bridge, timber construction, across the Colmar canal at Muntzenheim.

9th February: "C" Company completed the "Henry Talquist Bridge" — (So named for T/4 Henry Talquist, who was injured by a crane boom, during night construction of the bridge.) This bridge, across the Colmar Canal at Muntzenheim, was a class 40, one way bridge, 108 feet in length.

25th February: "C" Company completed construction of timber trestle bridge across the Seille River at Dieuze.

10 March: "A" Company, in conjunction with "C" Company, constructed a 150 ft Triple Double Bailey Bridge across the Saar River, from Grotliedstross, Fraure to Kleinbittersdorf, Germany. "A" Company began construction on the French side of the river, while "C" Company began construction on the German side.

15 March: "B" Company replaced one dry treadway bridge with a timber span 18 ft long and repaired a section of bridge which had been destroyed by demolitions, restoring this bridge to two-way traffic. This was in the opening drive of the Seventh Army on the Siegfried Line.

17 March: "B" Company completed construction of a Double-Single Bailey Bridge, 70 ft long, at Fedingen.

21 March: "A" Company erected a Double Single Bailey Bridge across an anti-tank ditch, and a 36 ft dry treadway bridge across another anti-tank ditch — both were in the Siegfried Line defenses.

15 April: "A" Company constructed a class 40, 18 ft timber bridge across existing stone culvert, which had failed under a load of tanks — town of Ullstadt.

15 April: "B" Company constructed a 30 ft timber trestle bridge at Dottenheim, also another 30 ft timber trestle, replacing another treadway, in the same town.

17 April: "A" Company constructed a Double Single Bailey Bridge, 80 feet long, on the site of a demolished railroad overpass south of Neustadt.

18 April: "B" Company constructed a 36 ft treadway bridge, at the town of Schwaihausen.

19 April: "C" Company constructed a 90 ft Triple Single Bailey Bridge, at Lehrberg.

19 April: "B" Company constructed a 60 foot Double Single Bailey Bridge, at Aunsbach.

20 April: "B" Company constructed an 80 ft Double Single Bailey Bridge, at Neustetten.

24 April: "B" Company constructed an 80 ft Double Single Bailey Bridge at Schwabsberg.

25 April: "C" Company constructed a 210 ft Triple Single Bailey Bridge across the Danube River, at Lauingen.

29 April: "B" Company constructed a 140 ft Double Double Bailey Bridge over the Lech River, at Schwahstail.

2 May: "A" Company completed construction of a 252 ft M-2 Treadway Bridge, north of Wolfratshausen, across the Isar River.
